Dear Mr. Dangerfield,

We were very interested to receive your letter of 18 October with the news that you heard the BBC Home Service broadcast via our medium wave transmitter at Lisnagarvey.

We can confirm that this was in fact the programme you were hearing - part of which originated from a London studio and part from our own studio in Belfast.

I am passing your letter on to my engineering colleagues who will be most interested. I may say that the announcer who read the local news - Duncan Hearle - was very pleased to know that he had a listener in Pennsylvania.

With best wishes and good listening!

Yours sincerely

Virginia Hardy
