Dear Mr. Geary,

Thank you for your letter requesting confirmation of your reception reports from 1991 and 1992.

I'm sorry that no one has answered your previous requests. Please accept our apologies.

In reference to your reception reports, I do not have ready access to information regarding WBNM's transmitter power on September 24th, but I'm fairly certain the power was 2.5Kw, and that a remote control failure had allowed the station to stay on the air during post-sunset hours. It is my understanding that this happened frequently in the past, and that KMOX had complained several times about the problem. However, your log of what you heard on WBNM on that date is an accurate description of the programming on WBNM at that time.

On January 14th, 1992, again, WBNM was operating at 2,500 watts, from our normal daytime antenna. And again, your description of programming is accurate.

I note that in early April, you had difficulty receiving WBNM. I should point out that WBNM has had transmitter difficulties since February, and was silent for about 7½ days. Also, the difficulties manifested themselves in the form of reduced modulation. WBNM is back to full strength, with good modulation again, as of Monday, April 26th.

I would be interested in further reception reports from you and other members of your organization. Again, I apologize for the lack of response earlier.

Sincerely,

Dave Stewart
Chief Engineer, WBNM/WNEK/WNEK-FM
