Kermit,

It is always a pleasure for us to verify distant reception of our station. From the information supplied, I can verify that you heard our station last Saturday afternoon. Most of the information was correct. The name of our corporation is J Starr Broadcasting Company, and the announcer on duty at the time was Teri Hammons.

We are a directional station, but as you can see from the enclosed coverage map, you are not in a direct lobe. We are a new station, having begun operation less than a year ago, May 9, 1980.

We expect to file an application with the FCC within the next few weeks for 5,000 watts and anticipate seeking full-time approval in about three years. Once this is accomplished you might be able to hear us more regularly. However, there is another day-timer on our frequency in Danville, Kentucky that should limit our distant reception. We have heard from other DXer's, primarily in a straight line with you.

Sincerely,

Barry Crowe
