HOW to LISTEN to RADIO AUSTRALIA on SHORTWAVE

Equipment

You will need to have a radio which can receive signals between 6000 and 22,000 kHz (6-22 MHz). This corresponds to metre bands from 49-13 m. The higher frequencies, i.e. 17750 or 15240 kHz, are used during daylight hours while lower frequencies, i.e. 5995 or 7330 kHz, are used at night. Intermediate frequencies such as 9580 or 13605 kHz are used during the early morning or evening local time.

A small external antenna, about 6 m (20 feet) long attached to a receiver may improve reception. Radio Australia has a guide to suitable shortwave antennae which is available free of charge.
