Dear DXer:

Thanks for your letter from the east coast. The test turned out fine, I received letters from both coasts. There was little interference on 950 kcs. that early in the morning. However on the west coast there was some interference from a Japan station.

WSHE is an independent station. We have a power of 500 watts and are a directional station. Our pattern is very tight with the largest lobe of power directed east and the smaller lobe of power directed west. Almost no power is directed to the north and south. WSHE has been on the air almost a year now. This is the first test of this type we have made.

Sincerely yours
