Dear Mr. Sampson:

This letter will confirm that the programming you heard between 12:54AM and 1:17PM on August 7, 1999 coincides with the programming broadcast on WRMR at that date and time.

As of May 27, 1999, WRMR began using newly rebuilt facilities at its suburban transmitting location south of Cleveland, using 50,000 watts daytime and 5,000 watts nighttime. The four tower daytime directional pattern is aimed primarily to the south, offering coverage of most of Ohio, and the separate four tower nighttime pattern is aimed primarily to the north. Since we must protect the KOA, Denver coverage area to the west, our nighttime signal in your direction is quite small. Not surprisingly, we receive very few reception reports from our nighttime signal to our west.

Congratulations on adding another report to your collection. I, too, have enjoyed Dxing the AM broadcast band for many decades, and know how appreciative listeners are in receiving these confirmations. Hope you can tune in many more in the upcoming years.

Best regards,
Ted Alexander
Chief Engineer
