Dear Mr. Wesolowski:

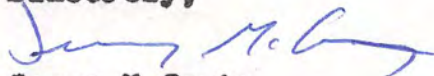

This will verify your reception of WPAG on June 24, 1975 at 6:00 am EDT.

Your unknown station that came on right after the WPAG sign-on was probably from Plymouth, Indiana. I hear tell that when they come on, it takes a chunk out of our signal in that direction.

You are correct when you say that there are many low power directional stations in Michigan. It must be our proximity to Canada or something, but we do have our share of them. If it is any consolation, there are two stations in Ypsilanti (which is closer to Ann Arbor than the map shows) that we cannot get here. And that is only a distance of 5 to 10 miles.

Thank you for your report and if you would like any further information on WPAG, do not hesitate to write.

Sincerely,

Jerry McCarty
