RANGER PEAK AERIAL TRAMWAY...THE SOUTHWEST'S MOST EXCITING VIEW!

Ranger Peak is your vantage point for the most breath-taking view of the El Paso Southwest. Your trip up the Tramway is a new experience in scenic beauty, starting the moment you enter the glass-enclosed cabin. As you begin the ascent, curious upthrust rock strata of Mount Franklin unfold beneath the cabin. Up and up you go until seven-thousand square miles of the Southwest and Mexico lie before you.

Step onto the railed veranda of the observation deck for an unforgettable view of this majestic view. To the east, see the colorful Hueco and Guadalupe Mountains. To the west are the Florida Mountains, and to the north and northeast you'll see the rugged Organ Mountains and the great White Sands National Monument. To the south lies Mexico, stretching to the horizon a hundred miles away. Pinpoint familiar landmarks in three states and two countries as you look across the grandeur of this fabulous view. It's unlike anything in this hemisphere.

A wide, paved road leads to the Base Terminal of the Tramway, and the free parking lot for visitors.

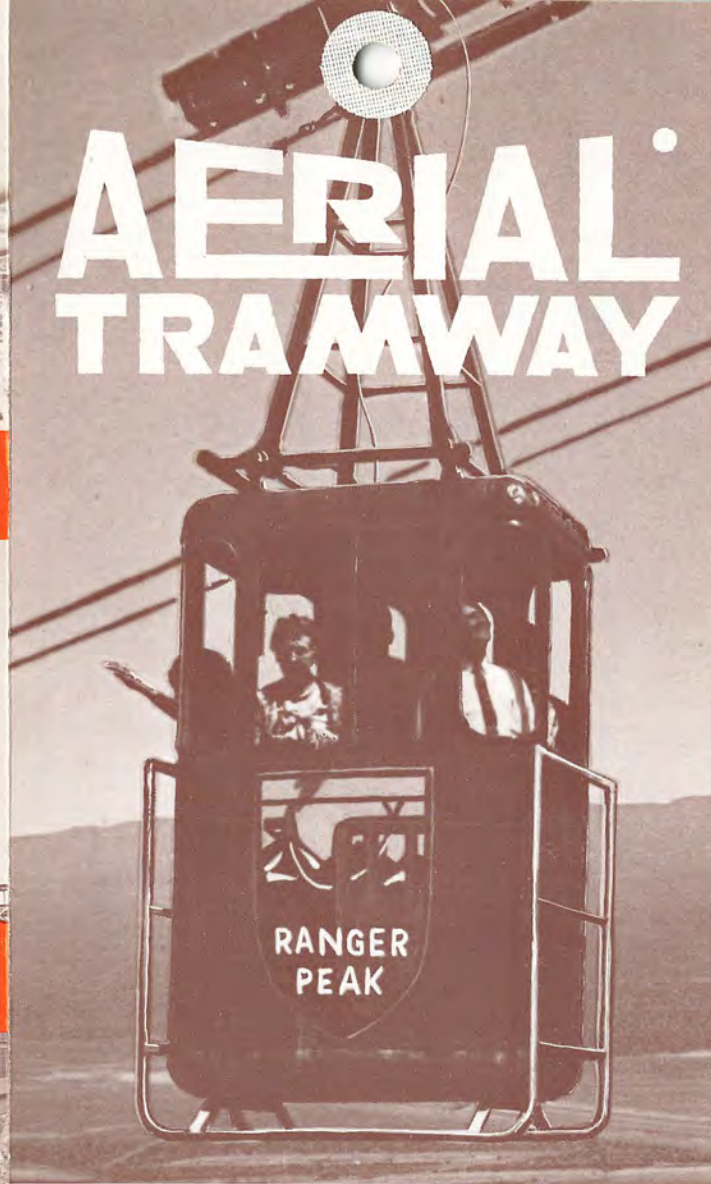

The Observation Deck on Ranger Peak offers a 7,000 square mile view of three states and two countries from its spacious, railed veranda.

A shaded patio provides a relaxing spot below the KTSM-TV (Channel 9) tower, reaching over 6,000 feet above sea level, and the highest in Texas.
